DEDICATION

CHARLES HOLDES HERTY

HENEVER a visitor is shown over the University of North Carolina, one of the first places to which he is taken is the Chemistry Building. The reason is not primarily because the building is a good building and the laboratories good laboratories. They are really excellent; but the main reason is that they are always full of people who are working hard, and seem to be glad of it. The visitor does not need to be told that notable work has been produced and is being produced there. He knows at once that he has struck a live, productive spot. If he is a wise visitor, he doesn't ask what peculiar local conditions make chemistry so important. He knows the answer. He knows that the atmosphere of successful, cheerful, hard work must be the reflection of a personality at the head of the laboratories.

Dr. Charles Holmes Herty is just rounding out a decade of service as head of the Department of Chemistry. He was born in Georgia, and received his early training in the Georgia Military and Agricultural College, and in the University of Georgia (Ph.B. 1886). He received his doctor's degree at Johns Hopkins in 1890, and then studied in Berlin and Zürich. He was Adjunct Professor of Chemistry in the University of Georgia, and after that, before coming to the University of North Carolina as full professor in 1905, did practical work in the turpentine forests of the South that may be said to have revolutionized the great turpentine industry. His cup and gutter system of gathering turpentine, according to figures given in the World's Work, increases the profits of the turpentine business thirteen millions of dollars a year.

After making such a contribution to the progress of his section, a man might be excused if he relaxed his energies a trifle. But Doctor Herty has steadily increased and widened his activities. He is a member of the leading organizations in his field of knowledge, both in this country and abroad, and a councillor-at-large of the American Chemical Society.

In addition to the work of carrying on a department that has three full professors and numerous assistants, Doctor Herty has shown the most loyal and lively interest in all the affairs of the college. In his own student days he was a successful athlete, and ever since he has kept a strong and sympathetic connection with all student activities. The athletic field at the University of Georgia bears his name, and ever since he has been in North Carolina he has given generously of his time and thought to the vexing questions of athletic management. He has served on the Faculty Committee on Athletics for almost ten years, and on other committees without number, where his tact, sympathy, and broad-visioned wisdom have been invaluable.

It has been the same way in the affairs of the town. In business affairs, and in the affairs of citizenship. Doctor Herty has been a leading factor in bringing to a successful issue many things that had long been desired, but that for one reason or another could not be carried out. As school commissioner and as alderman, he was a leader in successful campaigns for a better school, for better sanitation in the town, for better roads in the county. Always good-tempered and tolerant, and ready to give thought, money, energy, and whatever else the occasion required, Doctor Herty has been one of the best citizens the town of Chapel Hill has ever had.

The YACKETY YACK is dedicated to him not merely as a teacher, a scientist, a good citizen; but as a combination of all these. He is the fine sort of college professor that the big men in his special field cannot help but admire, and the average man on the street cannot help but like.

THE START

N THE mark! Get set! And Carolina is off for the year's course rejoicing as a strong man to run a race. A record registration, a changed attitude toward Freshmen, and high faith in the year at hand marked the start.

Of course those little things usual in the start were in evidence—book selling of radiators to the new occupants of a room, letters from parents to esident reminding him to meet William at the evening train, and certain various st-year men who called for rooms at Commons Hall, or who registered their turch denomination as First Baptist, Second Presbyterian, and Elm Street Methodist, who kept the assigned Chapel seats at mass meetings and public addresses, and could the "gagged" into staying away from Chapel on Saturday.

Yet through the separate incidents and life mass ran the confident strength and opiness of awakened life. The Sophomores were among the leaders in helping Freshn to register and get settled right. Representative student leaders on College Night roduced the new men to activities and life of the campus. The reception to Freshmen en in the Library is memorable for its green boughs, flowers, music, and six hundred ople. Out on the Varsity field, the squad was rounding into the second week of early actice, and the natural fact was developing that the Carolina team would be made gely out of the unsuccessful material of the previous Fall. Over a hundred men were training on the class field. By Wednesday of the second week, it had got into the ide of youthful heads that the class-room rather than the athletic field was the center life here. And the steady pace of the year was on.

Catch the significance of an opening in which there was no bell ringing, no random tol firing, no cries of f-r-e-s-h, no bands of even playful hazers, no noise except that ident to the joyful re-meeting of friends, the unloading of trunks, and the stir of pectant life, and you have the year 1913-1914—off with a bound.

ON TO RICHMOND!

WO months of preliminary football, two weeks of more than usually purposeful coaching, two days of mass-meetings, and "On to Richmond" have left the campus, football mad. Such is the situation the day before Thanksgiving. Recitations are a failure; pervading everything is an air of pectancy and preparation which grows more intense as the afternoon advances. It is a onic annual malady, as inevitable as the poison-oak in the spring, and as virulent. For there is one relief, and only one—to wit: an excursion ticket, and a half-interest in a th on the Richmond special. Men who were determined to stay behind, becoming ected with the common spirit, beg or borrow the necessary wherewithal. By nine clock the streets are full of men in gala attire, and with overcoats and suitcases. Noise d excitement prevail. The members of the band wander about with their instruments torture, making weird sounds. The cafes are full. Jimmy Neville's is beseiged by a owd buying tickets, armbands, and megaphones. In front of the postoffice, a mob is acticing yells for tomorrow. Contrast the scene two hours later. The town seems to ve moved itself bodily to West End. There, in the semi-darkness, confusion reigns oreme; men stumbling over suitcases trying to find their respective cars and sections; the isting Chapel Hill darkies, now polite to the point of pain, depend not in vain on their oung masters" to take them along. Finally all are crowded on. With straining and paning of the overloaded train. Carolina is off again on her annual pilgrimage to chmond.

EXAMS

ITH the pleasant stream of autumnal diversions, the interest of football, the trip to Richmond, the dances, and finally home for the holidays, we have fallen into rather an easy gait. But now, after Christmas, there is in the air the promise of a quickening, a reckoning imminent. Those who are versed the signs of the times are seen to drag forth neglected text-books, dust-covered, to search r forgotten spots. Then suddenly, about the middle of January, the prophesy arrives its fulfillment. It comes in the form of exams—a nerve-racking cataclysm. Wise with wisdom of painful experience, the older heads go about it coolly. They know that to t excited is a probable step toward disaster; that midnight oil is inferior to midnight ep as a passer of exams. But even at that, it is an unrestful time of tension, of anxiety ten-days' bad dream. How about the less experienced? For them it is a real nightare. Some, warned in time, have followed the advice of the veterans, and fare as well. thers, mindful of nothing, continue their heedless way. They find the fast pace killg; soon begin to stagger and falter in distress. A few by natural strength manage labor along. Many fall by the wayside, borne down by fives and sixes. It is truly awful time. Much more of it, and we feel that life would really not be worth e weary struggle. But it has been said that all things have an end; and at length en this period of horror expires. The unusual sprint is over. The runners drop ck into the old pace. Notebooks are lost; text-books begin to accumulate the accustomed gnity of dust; the existence of athletics is remembered; we again find time to sit in front Patterson's, and admire the Goddess of the Pickwick, as her majesty takes the air. In ort, life is resumed at the same old stand.

THIRTY-THRE

"Well, What's the Latest?"

RUNNING FOR

MANAGER

POLITICS

EELZEBUB was the first politician. He gained a kingdom, and the title
"His Satanic Majesty." Here we reap great receipts, and are honored as "Manager." Think not, however, that the difference in the rewards noted above is due to a superior native ability of His Honor, the Devil. Far it. The ability we have; our field is limited, and it is the firm belief of many that "Beelz" himself sits in the gallery of Gerrard Hall whenever any great coup is uted, trusting to pick up some fine points of the game; and at all elections he has at one reporter.

Naturally, we are proud of our politicians. Who else, indeed, could finance our letic Association? This they have done; and have so well managed as to run only housand dollars in debt. And who else could make us a factor (in spite of our rd) in the South Atlantic Championship? Not the athlete. He tried, and failed, the politician—the wily, cunning, subtle politician—this he can and has achieved.

Yet, despite their noble achievements, the politicians have suffered heavily from lty criticism. One consideration alone has so far saved them. It is argued, and justice, that politics is democratic; it is the only spur under the sun sharp enough to e a man of self-respect greet his greasy fellow, a distant acquaintance of water and tal stranger to soap, with the social salutation, "Hail Brother!" And we are nothing of democratic.

Would that this were a salutatory, prophecying the glory that will come to all icians; but it is not. The age is decadent, all things noble suffer, and even now the on tolls the knell of parting politics.

THIRTY-FIVE

JUNIOR WEEK

HEY used to have a couple of dances Junior Week, the same as after Thanksgiving, thinking that was enough. But my word! that just begins it now. Back in 1909, George Thomas said, "Let's have a Junior Prom"; and they did. And now, every year, either the Juniors or the Sophs give a ince, depending on which Class has the most dancing men. Of course the German Club mes across, and the Juniors take turn about, and anybody else who has any money turns loose somehow. The Senior Class mixes up every single funny thing that has happened ice the Davie Poplar was a pup, and gets revenge on the faculty in a dazzling dramatic arolina specialty known as the Senior Stunt. And that isn't all. Sneath's songbirds rrow dress suits, and do their little stunts; and Henry Meeks discusses love in the famous ange blossom tenor. George McKie can't have anything put over on him; so he dresses Weeks and Barney Pitts, and they imitate John Drew and Billy Burke, and think they e getting away with it. The dear old Di and Phi (or Phi and Di) hopped on the band agon two years ago, and now the voice of the orator is heard in the land, a-thundering out Deemockrasee—and all for the honor of the Carr medal. Baseball games and ick meets overflow what is left. And all this in the middle of the term? Sure—any nehead can double-cross the faculty. Shift that George Washington Birthday holiday a bit, and bring your Easter Holidays all together, and you will have the greatest part the week free for yourself and the girls.

The girls—there's the keynote of Junior week. They cause the whole doggone cause. They are the ones for whom orchestras play, and Vernon Castles dance, and eeks and Coggins act, and Rabbit Bailey slides, and everything else. They reign breme. They flit from Frat Hall to Frat Hall, raising their dear voices up to the skies, aghing, teasing, and conquering. From Cherokee to Currituck they swarm to Chapel ill to reap the fresh harvest. And bul-lieve me, they can get away with it every day the week, and Sunday too.

That's Junior Week!

THIRTY-SEVE

THIRTY-EIGHT

THE PINISH

INAL exams are over, and the end of the last lap is in sight. Another year of work and play, of growth and development, is past. But it means more than that to some of us. It means the culmination of four years of life, in many respects the best four years. We entered raw boys; we are leaving nough with the newness of it still with us. Never again, no matter what we encounter, similar length of time mean so much to us. We are too close to it yet to appreciate to bishment. We have passed our work. We have done something in athletics, are taken part in varied activities. Best of all, we have rubbed shoulders with men, all sorts of men, and we have been broadened by the rubbing. And now there a man of us who does not know that it has been worth while. Also, what we ly do not realize, there is not a man of us who will not carry the marks of the four omewhere upon him for the rest of his life.

There is a touch of sadness in the picture, too, as we prepare to leave what to us en home for so long. Then, we feel rather lost. Heretofore there has always been ing to fight for, to work for. We stand upon the pinnacle that we have longed for ears to reach, and it is for the moment disappointing. The pleasures of anticipation ne, and the joys of realization are flat. But it is only for a moment. As we turn a adly from gazing down the slope in the twilight, dawn breaks, and the view opens the front. Instead of at the pinnacle, we stand upon the merest foothill. The lofty towers above, still to be won. The world lies before us. The Finish is but the ting; truly we are at the Commencement.

CLASS POEM

OUR years ago, we gathered on this campus, fresh and green,
To pursue the theme of knowledge, and the gems of wisdom glean.
Four years we've worked together, in sympathy and cheer;
In fellowship we've striven to surpass each former year.

The field is large, and wisdom infinite; Our brains too small to garner time's full store. Yet we have labored with determined might To gather to our harvest one pearl more.

We're on the sands of learning's boundless shore; The ocean depths we have not yet explored; We've skimmed the surface of ancient lore, But drunk not of the beauties therein stored.

What boots it that we've labored with our might, And scanned the wisdom sages handed down. If we do not diffuse a beam of light And in our simple service wear a crown?

The ages past have pointed to today;
The present is our time to win or fail.
Then 'tis our glorious privilege to say
That justice, truth, and mercy shall prevail.

In parting now, our faith we plight anew; Each other's friendship we will ever need. Our inner souls command us to be true, And bid each one a reverend godspeed.

FORTY-TWO

SENIOR TOPOGRAPHY

HE human mind is a wonderful thing in its behavior: often comical, always interesting. But much more wonderful, more comical, more interesting, is a collection of human minds, when trained upon a common subject. Like the points of a circle, each sees the object at the center from its own angle, with its own separate, private, little individual point of view. And as the points in a circle, so Archibald says, are infinite, and separated by a distance infinitesimally small, so are there as many points of view on a subject as there are minds grouped around it, separated by distinctions so infinitesimally small that two often seem identical. And that, you anticipate, is the "graph" at the senior vote? Not yet. Imagine your circle as composed of only eighty-odd points-think of that, Strong, you are merely a dot-each endowed with magnetism according to its own caliber, attracting others to its point of view, or being attracted. The circle is distorted, but more human. Imagine your center, upon which all are trained, changed into a little circle of the same eighty-odd points. Andyou have complicated the problem. I defy even Collins and Taylor to solve it by the best of their formulae. But let that irregular curve speak, and we shall find out what the Seniors think of themselves.

At the question as to The Most Serious Occupation, verily the lid of Pandora's box was smashed in. We have everything from farming to flying machines.

We confess, as a favorite way of killing time, to loafing and sleeping principally. But some suggestions were unique. One deep thinker is at a loss to choose between hanging and electrocution for the purpose. "Thinking of my beloved" raves one lunatic. another, too good to be true.

"OSCAP"

"Going to church" vociferates

We love chickens—that is, we like to eat chicken. Also peanuts and elephant ears. In our drinks, our tastes are strange, water being professedly the favorite, with the innocent milkshake second. However, a few desperate characters call for dopes and sloe gin. Nearly half the class are non-smokers, the rest smoking from El Principe to rabbit tobacco. One reckless youth admits that he is satisfied with anything that will burn.

FORTY-THREE

In a misguided moment, we asked the question, what is your favorite postmark? Answers galore, from Manteo to Murphy, places we never knew before existed. Did you ever hear of Stern? Where is Lake Landing?

What is your favorite machine? We answered every kind of automobile known, and some that were not known. In addition, there were locomotives, aeroplanes, wheelbarrows, a hay-burner, and one steam shovel. Surely variety is the red-pepper of existence.

The biggest thing some of us have done while here is to pass certain dreaded courses, mostly math. One bragged, however, that he had escaped Φ B K; another that he had made it. One rejoiced that he had taken Greek; his neighbor boasted that he had had sense enough to drop it. Some were glad they stayed here; one hero that he had got suspended. And so it goes.

We are ambitious to achieve many things; fame, honor, wealth; to pass Greek Two; to graduate; to succeed; just to exist; to get out of debt; and any number, ye gods, to get married.

We claim greatest indifference to courses we have flunked; to professors who have thrown us; to people and things we don't like; and to what we have not and are not in general.

Sixty per cent. either confess, affirm, or boast that they are in love. Thirty per cent. deny the charge. One poor soul is uncertain. The rest either inform us that it is none of our business, or keep a discreet silence. Watch these last—they are either incurables, or have just received the Manus Borealis on the back of the neck.

For best representative, there are some ten contestants; but few are more than spasmodic; and Chambers, the reliable, comes up to be crowned, with the others barely in sight.

Most popular? Always an interesting question. I wonder what man you would pick. Right! None other than the senior president—good old, slow-talking Oscar Leach.

These Seniors must have thought most versatile had something to do with beauty; for half the class voted for themselves. At least, almost that many got one vote. The rest, realizing the true meaning of the term, divided equally for Chambers and Strong.

Another question that caused trouble was who has developed most since that September Morning nearly four years ago? Immediately things became as lively as a

"RATTY"

Sophomore election; and when the smoke cleared away, Strong, chest out and head in the air, led Whiting by two votes, with Ratty, T. I., Spider, both Lees, and all three Holmes' tieing for third honors.

Services upon the gridiron were not forgotten either, and to Big Ab's monogram and three stars was added the title of having done the most for Carolina.

For the least appreciated, Chambers and Parker tied; but if they get too proud we will tell how few votes they got. Neglected indeed was the man who didn't get a vote.

In the general argument, a half-dozen votes decided that Leach was the man most likely to succeed; the other twenty contestants had for a solace the thought that the thing was as close as—

There was a four-cornered contest for the wearer of the greatest amount of dignity—Carlton, Whiting, and Cansler pressing Oates close for the honor, at first. But, as the final ballots came in, the only Smack, Sky-Blue Boy, showed that he had been just trifling—that if it came to a show down, not even the Chapel Household Gods, Moore and the Hermes, nor Dr. V. himself, had it on that Orful Oates in the matter of dignity—serene, calm, and unruffled.

Little doubt was present as to the best athlete. Chambers' three monograms, with stars here and there, was too much for even Big Ab.

And now, who is to be judged wearer of the laurels at the platform—an important question on this campus of glorious forensic history? As debater, the largest Holmes, that is to say Albert, easily stands first; while Webster, like his great predecessor, silences all others by his silver-tongued oratory.

"HUBERT"

As best writer, there were few aspirants. No one who reads the Tarheel editorials could doubt where this title, too, must rest. His clear, simple, forceful pen has won it for Chambers.

There was a hot contest for the premier business man. Johnson and Dunnagan fought for it, nip and tuck; and both were deserving. Johnson at length drew ahead by a shadow—and we think it would have broken his heart otherwise.

FORTY-FIVE

Hardest fighter? Ratty Ranson! unanimous but for two votes. What a pity they could not be disregarded. For pure, blind, unreasoning sheer fight his equal is not known.

For broadest-minded, Whiting is the only one with any considerable collection of ballots, a large number being scattered. Likewise, for most independent there were so many entries that no one could get more than a half-dozen votes. With that many, Strong and Jones tied.

Then the politicians assembled to choose their champion. But the caucus was scarcely in session before the second raters began to remember engagements elsewhere.

"TICK"

In a few minutes, the floor was left to Drew and Webster. As we go to press, the Tarheel comes out with an extra, declaring that in the deadlock no signs of a break appear. Further, there is no dark horse with spirit enough to even neigh in the same district as these two battle-scarred champions. Frank swears it is a frame-up against his fair reputation—that the one thing he dislikes is politics. "Tick"—short for politic—on the other hand is sure he is present through some mistake. And we? Well, we think each "doth protest too much."

Jealous of his class-room honors, the less fortunate have voted Collins the hardest Grind.

It is rumored that Perry's middle name is Dissent. Anyway, he is the official class objector.

Of romancers, versed in the flowery wiles of mendacity, there was indeed a goodly flock. But none dared crowd upon the heels of the bell-wether, Ike Strayhorn.

Jimmy Holmes, president of the Y.

M. C. A., has the religion of the class—though there was a certain neatly-written little vote for Mr. Dunnagan.

Ratty Ranson again bobbed up into the much-sought white glare, this time as most officious member.

Then rose the question of who could be depended on, and who would be certain to prove an alibi—or is it an alias—when wanted? The positive virtue fell to the lot of Leach. For most undependable, everybody voted for his closest friend, but George Holton, by virtue of his position as YACKETY YACK photographer, was presented with the lemon.

FORTY-SIX

Hart is the sleepiest member; Struthers the noisest, without a doubt; Peele the biggest bluff. And everybody travels, but Cv Long the most.

As to the least productive—well, we fear that many of us would lose some of our self-importance if we could read this long list of names. But it had to be divided between Hart, James, and Andrews.

Of course, nobody drinks! But there was a surm'se as to who would probably prove the thirstiest. There were many names, but only one who seemed possessed of a genuine Sahara Desert, Richmond-on-Thanksgiving-Day, kind of a thirst. For obvious reasons, his name will remain a dire secret, but—he is a short, dark, tall, blonde, sort of a fellow. Maybe you can identify him.

Thus did our magnetized, twisted, irregular circle of eighty-odd dots speak, naming one dot this, calling another that. And if in the verdict one should seem to be exalted high above his fellows, let him be thankful; it is high praise; but let him also not forget that he is still but a dot, one of eighty-odd. And if one should seem to be forgotten, let him not be downcast; he is still one of the eighty-odd. And if one should seem to be laughed at, let him laugh with the rest at the joke that was intended as an evidence of friendship to him from the eighty-odd. For they are one circle, a unit for a little while. Let each one feel his part, that it may be a joyous merrory to him long after the circle is broken, the parts scattered to four winds.

"ABBY," the best-known and best-loved figure that walks the campus. A big, simple, kindly soul; giant in stature; a little slow, but everlastingly there. And strong—in playful moods, he tosses one around as an elephant would. Four years of Varsity football, with captaincy in his Senior year, speak for themselves; and CAPTAIN ABERNATHY takes his honored place beside Tillett, Win:ton, and other Carolina heroes, a name to conjure with in Tarheel land.

"RED" came here with a good football and baseball send-off from Kinston. The moving spirit of our class ball teams for three years; and, in spite of his minor avoirdupois. Varsity quarterback in his Senior year. For "RED" knows and loves the game, not the least among the attractions of a Virginia trip. He is also loyal to the red, white, and blue. Just because he doesn't say any more about himself than he does about anything else, you might think that "BEN" didn't do anything here on the campus. A very few trips to the baseball field, however, would let you see that he is somebody at Chapel Hill. His silence there can't keep you from knowing that he is our premier pitcher. Equally ready to put across a wise business deal or to pass a soul-nourishing hour in smoke and a "little game." Showed more sense than the average college business man by dodging college "sinecures." Rooming with Oscar, he has led an upright life. "MAC" is a man who carries out what he undertakes; energetic and dependable, he is bound to make good.

"Mack" is a mixture of Y. M. C. A., Bohemia, Geology, and Washington and Lee. He is rather fair to look upon, and knows it; but he is too bashful to push this natural advantage with the oirls. Mack's regrets are two: first, that Collier did not also teach Greek, and second, that basket-ball N. C.'s are not more plentiful.

"CHOLLY" is such a hard worker that he is seldom seen, and less often heard. You can usually find him at his room, either boning hard or counting his money. On State occasions, you may see him strolling around with his friends. But you have to hear CHOLLY to appreciate him, for his soft, sweet voice and charmingly feminine ways place him beyond question in the Boseman, Kerr, Millender trio. He contemplates studying medicine. May his success at Jefferson be even more brilliant than his record here.

The most skilled tennis arm, the dancingest feet, and the stiffest back whereof the University can boast. Voted the most dignified man in the Class, he smiles the ball-room smile, straightens his shoulders impossibly straighter, runs his finger along the razor edge of his trousers, pats his hair down, adjusts his te one-eighth of an inch to the right, and strides off to P. "PRE" is a jack-of-all-trades—studies, politics, athletics—the which he touches, values, and passes in his quest for life. His propensity for making himself a part of all that he has met gave him a fair chance to become famous, but he let Struthers and Ranson beat him out. MISS PUETT? Why, man, she saved us from being a co-ed-less Class. That's some, but she is more. She's rather modest and shy, but a true Tarheel and 1914 product, even if she did come to us in the last lap, with a degree from Chicora College, S. C. Rumor makes her a good cook. She paints—on paper. She is always in a good humor, thoughtful, not easily provoked, but—has an opinion of her own, seldom expresses it unless necessary, and then with a sweet little lisp, which she denies. These and other good qualities command our respect and admiration.

The Lord never made a fiercer fighter. If his body had been bigger and his head cooler, he would be wearing four N. C.'s instead of being an eternal scrub. The livest wire in the Class, independent to swaybackness, officious, talkative, attending to everybody's business, "RATTY" has made himself terribly important in athletics, in politics, in running the University, in everything. His simple and obliging manner have made RALPH well-liked on the campus, but at the same time kept him away from great prominence. He has been given little in comparison with what his natural ability and hard work have won for him. This fortunate combination has placed him in our front rank on the track and in the class-room. There is one serious blot, however, on his track record. The encyclopedia of college gossip tells us that not so long ago a blind baby named Cupid overtook him in less than a day, after having given him twenty years' start.

Now, when he goes about the campus, jovially slapping you on the back, puffing smoke from a cigar stub nto your face, telling you what he has done, and by two successive grunts and a nudge asking you what you think about it, you recognize not the simple IKF of yore but one of the Brotherhood of the great illuminated.

In Memory of

"Little Abby"

IS going has left a heaviness in our hearts, and an emptiness in our lives.

For a week "Little Abby" came on the football field and fought his hardest, when he knew he was sick. With a determination seldom equaled, he kept fighting until he fainted at breakfast table, in Greensboro, while with the team on the way to play Washington and Lee. Friends tenderly cared for him until he was sent home with the typhoid fever. He was unconscious almost continually until the end.

We seldom meet such a quiet, strong, unassuming hero as he was.

"Smile, and the world smiles with you"; and this is a motto adopted by EZRA. He greets everyone with a smile—the ladies with two smiles; and wherever you see him he is always the same well-met fellow. EZRA is a good all-round man, easily makes friends, and has no enemies. He is deeply interested in his profession, has good prospects, and we hope to hear from him in the future, and to learn that he has made good.

WALTER FRANK TAYLOR Faison, N. C.

Age, 25; height, 5 feet 9 inches; weight, 150.

"FRANK" is theoretical, practical, and, if there is any other intellectual element, we are willing to state he's that too. In short, FRANK is an all-round man of the best brand. If any one good quality can be said to stand out above another, perhaps his debating should be placed first. For proof of his efficiency in this respect, we refer you to Pennsylvania and Virginia, both of whose teams fell before his arguments.

"Why should I worry and get wet feet"

"STUB," one of the youngest in the Class, but not in knowledge. He is a bright bour, and has a bright future before him. He is a great lover of sport, and can be found when wanted at a punch-board down at the Orange Drug Company, pulling for a home run at five cents a pull. He is also a lover of art, and often will be found at Foister's art store firting with the lady clerk. But he intends to brighten his future by going higher in his profession. Here's hoping he will succeed.

PAUL BRANTLEY Wilson, N. C.

Age, 20; height, 6 feet 1 inch; weight, 156,

"He wears a smile that won't come off"

"RED," the most popular man in the Class, hails from Wilson, the garden spot of the world for pretty girls. It is universally conceded that he knows more materia medica than anyone else in the Class. So it will be no great surprise if he writes a text-book on materia medica before he finishes his college career. He is a good egg, and well liked by every man in the Class. It is his intention to make his debut to the medical world next year. It is felt that "RED" will make good in this field, and the whole Class wish him much success.

ONE HUNDRED FORTY-ONE

Age, 22; height, 5 feet 7½ inches; weight, 140.

"Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a full"

"Cas," as he is commonly known, came to us from the Class of '12, having dropped out one year to decide upon what course he might pursue. He finally came to the conclusion that he would follow the profession of Pharmacy, and get his diploma. Cas is a constant visitor to the Normal. Why, I don't know, unless he has something in view more than merely the trip. Cas is a diligent worker, trying to discover something new so as to escape the daily toil behind the prescription desk. We predict for him a bright and prosperous future.

Wilkes County Club; Historian of Class.

DAVID HEATH. Rock Hill, S. C.

Age, 19; height, 5 feet 111/2 inches; weight, 165.

"They always think who never talk"

DAVID is a good boy, for he doesn't play his harp, but he is a consistent worker. This fact is evidenced by his nocturnal boring—for the Pickwick. Out of the nine-hundred-and-fifty-eight official preparations and crude drugs, he has learned one, sarsaparilla, and he says that if his soap will ever lather, he will put out one of the best shaving soaps that ever went on the market.

SUMMEY BYRD HIGGINS Leicester, N. C.

Age, 20; height, 5 feet 11 inches; weight, 170.

"Hig," as he is best known, is one of the brightest boys in his Class. He is a fellow that never gives up, but keeps on trying. If you can't find him at his room, you can find him at the Pharmacy Lab. making soap; for he is a fellow that believes in keeping clean. His aim is not to roll pills behind a prescription desk, but to go higher in his profession, which we all know he will.

Buncombe County Club; William Simpson Pharmaceutical Society; President Pharmaceutical Club; Journal Club; Treasurer of Class; Scrub Football; Class Baseball 1913, KENNITH ALEXANDER KIRBY Marion, N. C.

Age, 22; height, 5 feet 10 inches; weight, 148.

"Much study is a weariness of flesh"

"KIRBY" looks as lazy as he is, but isn't quite as lazy as he looks. Easy going, good natured, and tow-headed. Has a good line of "dope," and always makes a hit with the ladies. Taking notes on Dr. Howell's jokes is his hobby. Kirby is a good egg, and we wish our president a prosperous future.

ONE HUNDRED FORTY-THREE

Age, 21; height, 5 feet 11 inches; weight, 150.

"In the Spring a young man's fancy Lightly turns to thoughts of love"

"EDISON." Do not get him confused with Thomas A. If you did, he would convince you that he was named after him. He has a ladylike disposition, which accounts for the many friends he has made. His favorite stunt is working in the "Pharmacy Lab." He will some day be a "bull Pharmacist," as he has received experience under "Horne."

John Lamberth Rogers Creedmoor, N. C.

Age, 21; height, 5 feet 11 inches; weight, 190.

"Here's to those who love us well— Those who don't, can go to hell,"

"BEEF." Talks much; says nothing. He can when he wants to, but seldom wants to. You can find him at the post-office every day, looking for a letter from Peace Institute. He is the largest, usgliest, and one of the brightest members of his Class. His aim is high. He intends to go to Philadelphia next year. Wherever he goes, he will make good.

Robeson County Club; Secretary and Treasurer of Pharmaceutical Journal Club; Greater Council; Vice-President of William Simpson Club; 2 & E.

Granville County Club; Y. M. C. A.; Phi. Society; Class Baseball 1912; Captain of Pharmacy Baseball Team 1913.

ONE HUNDRED FORTY-FOUR

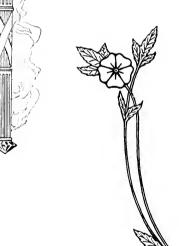

Age, 28; height, 5 feet 8 inches; weight, 150.

"With the hope of passing the Board, he 'Jags' along"

"DADDY," as his age indicates, is the oldest one of the Class. He says little, but thinks lots (mostly of the ladies). He claims one never gets too old to flirt with the girls. His greatest ambition is to pass the Board; for he is always at his room studying. "DAD" is a good egg, and is liked by all who know him, even the girls. We all wish him much success in the profession as a "pill roller."

MAN who had lived in the atmosphere of the Carolina campus went to teach in another college in our State. When he was about to hold his first examination, the chairman of the Examinations Committee said to him, "You come from Chapel Hill, and I have heard that there you have what is called the Honor System, and do not watch men on examination. But remember, we don't do business that way here. You must keep a strict watch on your students today." The Carolina man answered: "A man whom I must watch I will not teach." This incident of twenty years ago expressed the high sense of honor which created here both the desire for student government and the ability to The campus consciousness demanded that the individuals maintain it. establish working conditions with each other in order that their separate interests might operate not antagonistically but in agreement, giving the greatest possible efficiency to the whole body, and the greatest possible development to each part. To attain this result—to secure "working conditions"—is the aim of student government. Inevitably, the first step in progress toward this result was the adoption of the Honor System, which placed the student on his honor to act like a man, ridding him of the crutch of faculty epsionage, and allowing him to hold up erect on his own backbone. As a concrete expression of the Honor System, the Student Council was organized, and was given the power to act for the student body.

STUDENT COUNCIL Standing: Cowles, Smith, Leach, Fuller, Kirby Sitting: Linn, Woollcott, Boushall

Our government was fairly launched Then came the partisan politician. No natural party lines being found in our community, artificial ones were set up. The non-frat became the antifrat; the Greek presented a solid front to the barbarian. Such a condition placed on the Student Council men who became intoxicated while they shipped others for the same of-fense. Such a condition placed in charge of our athletic teams men who returned palpably diminished receipts to the treasury, burying the Association in debt. Such a condition subordinated efficiency to faction, and caricatured government in the mud of politics.

A severe test confronted the student, to prove his ability to maintain working conditions for the good of the whole. The success of student government was at stake. Then a new element came forward in the campus consciousness. To honor was added foir-mindedness. This second element, though slow in forming, sprang naturally from the first; the sense of right in his own conduct inspired in the student faith in the independent action of his brother. And this afforded a more complete view of government. It was seen that in order to secure the best results no section could be banished from consideration. When at one time two fraternity men are the only nominees for manager, or at another time two non-fraternitymen are the only nominees for Class president, it is realized that fair-mindedness has obtained a place among student ideals, and that government is thereby better able to attain its end—working conditions for the good of the whole.

The genius of government, quickened by the sense of honor, and rounded out by the spirit of fair-mindedness, has expressed its higher power in the organization of the Greater Council. The old Student Council confined its attention to repressing wrong. The Greater Council, composed of members of the Student Council with additional representatives from each Class, is organized as a central committee to work for the constructive promotion of the welfare of college life. But the Council is only an agent of the student body. Government is not confined to a few; it is the activity of all the students. It will ever be aveing a student interest demands.

SOCIAL LIFE

SOCIAL LIER

AN is moral, physical, intellectual, and social.

These sides of his nature must develop harmoniously. The denial of any one of them results in deformity. Such are the truths of man's nature.

From the compelling necessity of social life generally, turn to it as expressed here. You find it existing distinctly within and as a part of the University. How could it be otherwise? The students, severed from their earlier associates, have no opportunity of outside social intercourse, such as is given students located in larger towns and cities. They are driven upon themselves; their social cravings must be satisfied by their fellows.

Even though so distinctly a part of the University, social life here is almost intangible. In the outside world, formal calls and parties do not satiate the social want; what do so are accidental meetings on the streets, neighborly chats, informal card games—anything, in short, not restrained, but natural. So it is with the University. The Y. M.

C. A. reception, college day, the dances—neither all nor any constitute the student's social life. On these occasions he merely takes his company manners out for an airing. His social nature is in reality satisfied by the everyday meetings on the campus, the athletic field, at meals, at the post-office, and in his room.

You old alumnus, dreaming before the fire of days gone by, or you young undergraduate, some summer's night, you do not remember this or that reception or dance. But how it makes your heart ache, and how it brings tears to your eyes to recall those gatherings in your room; to see again the faces of your chums through a haze of tobacco smoke; to almost hear their voices—now serious in weighty discussion, and now gay in quick repartee; to go again to the mail, storm the doors of Commons Hall, cheer on the football team! And such are the things that compose the students' social life. Essentials are they to man's social nature. Without them, University life would be but an unbearable success on of endless, irksome tasks.

ONE HUNDRED FIFTY ONE

As organized expressions of social life, one finds the Fraternities, but these have largely abandoned their earlier purely social purpose. They have become fields of endeavor, in which the student may exercise—organizations into which one gravitates, drawn by ties of kinship and local influences. They bind their members; but friendships originated solely through their influence lack spontaneity and that sure foundation of genuine sympathy.

The Fraternity is the luxury of social life, as the Pullman is of travel. In the Fraternity, as in the Pullman, life is perhaps easier, more comfortable; but social life outside the fraternal orders is none the less real, is equally as genuine, and is actually far greater.

DEBATING.

DERATING

DEBATING

AROLINA should be proud of many of her records; but of her debating achievements she should be proudest of all. Out of thirty-eight debates held with the foremost Universities of the South, and one of the North, Carolina has been victorious twenty-eight times. Virginia, the ancient rival; Hopkins, the University of national fame; Tulane of the Far South; and

Pennsylvania, representing the North, have all fallen before the genius of Carolina record which any institution would be proud; but why has there been such marked success? are at least two fundamental causes that can be assigned for the existence of the boastable First, the inter-society debates, of which there are four each year; and second, the fact that both inter-society and intercollegiate debating at Carolina are upon the competitive basis.

In fact, out of the last nineteen debates, but three have been lost.

For a long time the Dialectic and Philanthropic Literary Societies have been holding intersociety debates; the Fresh-Soph. the Soph-Junior, and the Commencement Jun or Debate. Even before a man becomes eligible to these contests, he has an opportunity to try for a place on the Freshman Debate, an inter-society affair, and should be be the most successful of the four speakers be receives a cash prize of ten dollars. At every stage of his college life, a man has a chance here to perfect himself in debating. to try out his oratorical powers; and when he arrives at the senior period he is well qualified to represent Carolina in an inter-collegiate debate.

Even this great number of opportunities to become familiar with argument and delivery is not the primary virtue of the Carolina system; for often men in their Senior year have, without preliminary training, been able to represent the University very creditably against the sister institutions. The system is competitive. Every man who is on any debate representing his society or college has won his place in a preliminary contest.

ONE HUNDRED FIFTY-FOUR

DEBATING

He is on the team because he can speak best, argue best, put up the best appearance. Popularity, pull, nor politics will aid anyone. He must simply be the best at Carolina, and it is to be said with pride that Carolina's best is always better. Competition decides who is best, and competition eliminates everything but men and genius.

It is with competition, with a system of development of men in their first college years, that Carolina has won out in the past. She can lose twenty out of the next twenty-two debates, and still be ahead of Ty Cobb's batting average. And who says that Carolina can't min the next twenty-two?

DRAMATICS.

DRAMATICS

ECAUSE the Dramatic Club of the University of North Carolina has ceased to be a minor activity in the realm of college activities do we claim the right of this space for a sketch of its history and success.

The history of Dramatics at Carolina begins with the unparalleled success of George Broadhurst's roaring comedy, "What Happened to Jones," produced under the direction of Professors McKie, Booker, and Cross, and acted by such stars as Coggins and Weeks. The selection of this play was a fortunate one. It was just the play to give work to inexperienced actors, and at the same time leave the impression that makes the audience look us up again.

The "Jones" year—1912-13—has this history: the troop visited nine different towns, presented "What Happened to Jones" eleven different times, pulled the ticket box for gross receipts to the amount of $1,037, after covering a territory of seven hundred and fifty miles and appearing before more than three thousand people.

Beginning the season of 1913-14 with more experienced men, and with an established reputation throughout Eastern North Carolina, the faculty committee, composed this time of Professors McKie and Booker, selected the celebrated English Comedy, "The Magistrate," by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero.

As evidence of the successful presentation of this difficult play, a clipping from the next day's issue of the News and Observer will suffice; a portion of which reads: "Dramatics at the University of North Carolina reached its highest point last night, when the University Dramatic Club successfully staged the celebrated English comedy, "The Magistrate," in Gerrard Hall, before an audience of over five hundred persons." That the season will have an unparalleled success is at this time evident, though at the time of the writing, only two performances have been given.

Whatever happens, the Carolina spirit is behind the Dramatic Club. And with this student support it already has, coupled with the talent which is being constantly developed by competent coaches, the students of Carolina will see before many years have passed the Dramatic Club at this institution in the same class, and moving in the same circles, with the Dramatic Club of Yale, Princeton, or Harvard,

ATHLETICS

ONE HUNDRED SEVENTY-FIVE

ATHLETICS AT THE UNIVERSITY

HEN the news of our defeat at Richmond in 1912 was flashed over the State, a feeling of discouragement everywhere ensued. "Are we never to be able to win from Virginia?" was the question heard on all sides. It was not long, however, until there arose out of the old rags of despart a new spirit of determination, which made itself felt all over the State. This manifested itself in a resolve of the alumni to ascertain the cause of our continued defeats, and to effect a remedy for them. In this respect our defeat had a salutary effect. It awakened everyone to the fact that half-heartedness on the part of the students and alumni in athletics at the University had to end; that only by hard work and enthusiasm was it possible for us to achieve success.

In pursuance of this resolve, a number of representative alumni held a joint conference with the faculty at the University shortly before Christmas. At this meeting, new plans for conducting abhletics at the University were decided upon. The Tarheel of that date says it was "the most significant step that has been taken in Carolina athletics in many years. The definite result of the conference was the recommendation that two committees be formed, on both of which the alumni are to be represented—one committee to have charge of procuring coaches, the other to have actual management of athletic affairs, schedules, supplies, and of looking for material. The old system, by which coaches have been secured, now from one institution, now from another, was unanimously condemned. The plan proposed by the alumni is made up from plans now being used at Princeton and Harvard. It is distinguished by introducing the feature of continuity. The head coach is to be procured for not less than three years. He may thus evolve a system of coaching that will be distinctively Carolinian. A nucleus of men who have already been trained shall be left to start the next year with." The alumni agreed to make good the deficiencies beyond a certain limit which the Athletic Association might make, and decided further that "there should be a resident athletic committee, composed of two faculty members, the graduate manager, the president of the Athletic Association, and the head coach—this committee to have the power of making schedules and local arrangements, purchasing supplies, and souring the State for material."

On January 27, at a second conference between the faculty, alumni, and representative students, Mr. T. C. Trenchard was elected head coach for three years, and several days later he signed a contract to this effect. This first material step toward the revitalization of Carolina's athletics was hailed by the students with much enthusiasm. "Doggie's" unfailing interest in the University, his record as a football player, his determination, and his ability to instill fight into a team, had already proclaimed him the man for head coach. Early in February, Mr. Trenchard came to the Hill, and began his work of pulling Carolina's a'hletics out of the rut in which they Fad been for ten years.

ONE HUNDRED SEVENTY-SIX

ATHLETICS

The new system of athletics was not instituted until after the baseball season began, and, consequently, Carolina's rather poor showing in that branch of athletics cannot be attributed to the new system.

During the Spring, two new institutions were inaugurated at the University, spring football practice, and the High School track meet. On the first of March, Spring football started on the class field. The art of passing, catching, and kicking were taught anyone who came out, regardless of whether he were a Varsity man or a near-clars player. In a contest held in May, five sweaters were awarded, one each to the man who had done the best work in drop kicking, in passing, in catching, and in tackling. The High School track meet was an event which did much to focus the attention of the State on the University, and to arouse interest among the high schools of the State in athletics. High schools sent teams to represent them in this contest. As yet, it is too early to estimate the effects of the meet on athletics at the University, but it is hoped that by creating a lively interest in athletics among the high school students the University may secure some developed material instead of the untrained men hitherto received.

An agitation which reached successful culmination last Summer was a plan of a compulsory athletic fee, suggested last Spring. The plan received the endorsement of the student body, and subsequently that of the trustees. This amounts to five dollars, half of it being paid at the Fall and half of it at the Spring registration. It admits every student to all athletic contests held in Chapel Hill, and while it is a means of some revenue to the Association, it also secures a large and representative University attendance at all the games.

Since football is the most important branch of college athletics, the real test came last Fall. After all the activity of the Spring and Summer, after all the newspaper comment, after all the rumors of the good material coming to us from the prep and high schools, everyone was anxious to know just what had developed. Football practice began on the first of September, and to those of us who as yet had not left home, the rumors from Chapel Hill about our excellent team-to-be were, indeed, pleasing. This we knew: If good coaching amount to anything, Carolina will show up well.

ONE HUNDRED SEVENTY-SEVEN

In addition to Mr. Trenchard, head coach, Talbot Pendleton, Tom Wilson, and Arthur Bluetenthal made the Carolina team what it was last Fall. Pendleton, who comes from Berkley Springs, W. Va., first played football at Episcopal High School, Alexandria, Va., where he made all-State prep. school halfback. In track also he won distinction, making the hundred-yard dash in nine and four-fifths seconds. At Princeton, he played class football during his Freshman year, and in the ensuing years he made the Varsity team, being captain in his Senior year. Tom Wilson, of Binghampton, N. Y., played guard on Dartmouth, and was thus disqualified for playing on the Freshman team at Princeton. Wilson, however, played guard on the Varsity team for two years. After his graduation, he returned to Princeton as head line coach, and during the Fall of 1912 developed, out of the lightest material seen at Princeton in many years, one of the best teams that has ever represented the college. Two weeks before the Thanksgiving game, Arthur Bluetenthal, of Wilmington, N. C., assistant head line coach at Princeton, came down from Princeton to give the Carolina team a final lesson in coaching. Bluey went to Princeton in 1908 from Exeter, where he played center. In his first year he made the Freshman team, and in the ensuing years the Varsity.

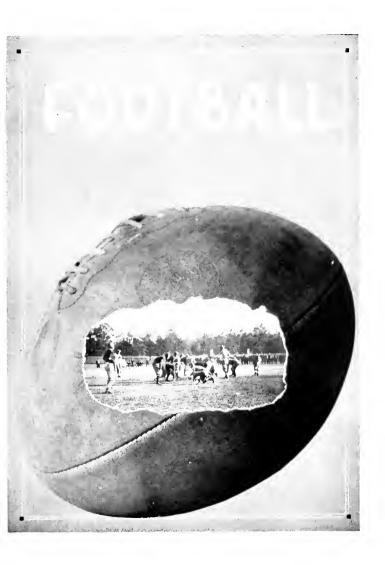

Although one might think the past season a failure if he looks only at the scores, it has been successful. The past season has witnessed, as it might be termed, a rebirth of Carolina's althetics, the overthrow of old methods, the instituting of new. One year at least was necessary to get a working hassis for the then untried system. We did not hope to develop a universally successful team last year. Our hope was not so much to make high scores ourselves, as to hold our opponents to small ones. Of similar nature and purpose to the high-school track meet was the high-school football contest, the final game of which was played at the University, and won by Raleigh from Washington.

About the baseball season, which is opening just as this book is going to press, it is too early to make prophesies. We believe, however, that with Earle Mack as coach, with the help of the alumni, and with enthusiastic response from the students, Carolina's baseball season will be much more successful than it was last year.

ABERNATHY _____ Right Tackle

"BIG AB" doesn't show it off; he doesn't talk about it; but he's just "there" in offense and defense, into the midst of every play. Four years on the team; All-South Atlantic two years; Carolina's Captain.

Easily the best ground gainer in our backfield. Knows and loves the game. "DAVE" is a good field general, and fitted for the captaincy in 1914.

FULLER Right Halfback

"PLING" leaped into fame with a seventy-yard run for a touchdown against Virginia. Back of this spectacular performance is the head and spirit of a hard, consistent player.

ALLEN Quarterback

"Red" proves the possibilities of class football. Worked three years for 1914, and then was called to quarterback the Varsity.

RWIN Fullback

"C. E." is a strong, dependable fullback. Worked up by steady effort, and is now one of the best line plungers in the South.

TANDY Center

Of centers, the best. Excels not in one but in every department of the game. "GEORGE" is the find of the year.

PARKER

Fullback

A play is a good one that succeeds in getting past "PETE," for he is a bulwark on defense. On offensive work, also he has shown his ability to make large gains,

Homewood

..... Right End

"Homewook makes the tackle. Time out" got pretty familiar at the continuous reports. Not roughness, but clean hard tackling. Mentioned by several papers for All-South Atlantic.

Huske

..... Left End

You rarely see a better end than "BILLY," in breaking interferences and covering punts. Works with all his might, and has made unusual development.

.... Left Guard

"FATTY" is a steady and consistent player, both on defense and offense. In interference, he is especially good for a line man.

Fousi

... Right Guard

"FOOSTIE" won fame by his toe. Outpunted his opponent in every game, and gained much for his team.

. Left Tackle

"Graham," according to Coach Wilson, is the "best seventeen-year-old football player in the country." To have a Freshman of his ability means much for Carolina football,

AROLINA men and Carolina well-wishers are well satisfied with the 1913 football season. It does not take a very far-seeing mind to read into the season a swift as well as a sure step from the foot towards the head of the Southern football class. If comparative showing alone formed the criterion, tatisfaction is to be expected. From a walkover at the hands of a fair Virginia team to a hard-fought struggle with about the best team that Virginia has ever had, is undoubtedly progress. And not only for its actual scores is the season gratifying, for the team had more on its shoulders than its own success. A system was at stake; and the moderate victory for the team was a glorious triumph for the system. Our defeats as well as our victories trace the progress of the team from the beginning to the end of the season.

When, on September 27, we defeated Wake Forest only 7 to 0, the prophesies for the season were very dark. The small score was a disappointment, as was the lack of life and practice shown by the team.

A week later, a bright spark of hope came to us, when the team showed good machine work and a strong line by scoring two touchdowns and a safety against Virginia Medical College, for 15 points against their 0.

"Back in the rut," was the verdict when a hard fight gave us only a 7 to 0 victory against Davidson. Poor generalship and a slow backfield kept us from a larger score.

On October 18, the team earned more than the 13 to 3 defeat of South Carolina. This game showed a very great improvement in the work of the team.

Fumbling was the only art the team seemed to have in the first three quarters of the next game.

When they finally did pull together and show football ability, it was too late.

The score was V. P. J. 14, Carolina 7.

against us convinced the doubters that we had a real team.

The Varsity, the scrubs, and then some, all helped to beat Wake Forest 27 to 0 on the following Saturday. This game gave some idea of how we had improved during the season.

Twenty-six to seven wouldn't give the impression of a hard-fought game, in which it was difficult to tell which team outplayed; but you are not hearing Carolina's side of it alone, when we tell you that such was the case in Richmond. The game was a fitting climax to a season of faithful training and excellent coaching, for the team showed its power to fight, and fight hard.

When it comes to give proper praise for our successful season, we cannot but divide it. The persistence and ability of the Varsity squad—not only the letter men, but also the hard-working scrubs, like Lord, Burnett, R., Boshamer, Reid, Edwards, Grimsley, Philips, Burnett, J., McCall, and others—the work of all the men who played on the Varsity field deserves the highest credit. These men were

THE luniors had the best material of the four classes. Their coach, Allen Moore, was a second-year medical student: and the only time that a second-year medical student has off from work in the week is a little while on Saturday afternoon, which tradition and social pressure have dedicated to a gym shower. The Juniors missed the fierce tackling spirit of "Little Moore," and tied up the race which they should have won. The Juniors were strong in Fitzgerald and Leak, aggressive tackles; Thompson, a left-fielding end; Nance, de-fensive full; and Woolcott, with his off-tackle run and drop kick.

Seniors

the championship tieup. The change in mid-season from a balanced formation to the Minnesota shift resulted in many dis-astrous fumbles. The Seniors exhibited a certain stubborn strength, but lacked the punch to put their weight across. Several of them got in some sort of shape to coach high school teams next year. Hatcher, experienced and heavy, was the strongest tackle on the four teams. The center positions were impregnable. For raw men, Reid and Knowles showed unusual ability. The Seniors never won a game, scored in every game, and lost after hard fighting.

SENIOR FOOTBALL TEAM

"CAPTAIN BURR" is an especially fast infielder, with a good peg, and dependable with the stick. Followed Coach to Winston and—well, you know all about him from the newspapers.

BAILEY, K.

Second Base

No second baseman in the State has anything on "RABBIT"; the team showed good judgment in making him next captain. His speed in fielding and base running is a feature of every game.

LEAK

JIMMY is always the same, and that means that he is always good. Harbors any kind of a throw to first. Experienced, and always heady.

Enthusiastic and hard working, "JULIAN" has started well, and bids fair to go better. A sure man behind the bat.

"Rody's" first year; but he showed up as a fast fielder and a good batter. A sure throw from third.

Аусоск

Pitcher

"BEN" has speed, curves, and an effective change of pace. Keeps the "old head," too; all of which means a first-class pill-twister.

THOMPSON Leftfield

"SHAG" covers left field to perfection. An allround ball player; ask Kelly, or Connie Mack.

GRAVES

Speed and spitball are HENRY's strong points; opecu and spitball are HENRY'S strong points; absence of control is his weakness. This latter, however, is due to his lack of experience, which time will remedy.

Bailey, H. Centerfield

Broke up the Virginia game in Greensboro with a three-sacker; this is almost a habit of his. "HUBERT" is there in centerfield, too, every time.

JOHNSTON

Rightfield

"PHOEBE" made himself prominent by swatting the ball. Captains that don't know him pick him to run bases. "PHOEBE" attends to right field on all occasions.

BASEBALL

BASEBALL

O THOSE of us given to prophesying, our baseball team of 1913 seemed destined to travel the same rocky road which had been traversed by the football and basket-ball teams of the same year. The fact that only three Varsity men—Captain Edwards, Second Baseman Bailey, and First Baseman Leak—had returned to college, and also the fact that no available Varsity material was in sight, led many of us to conclude that the 1913 team was going to be somewhat below the usual high standard of the University baseball teams. It was a clear case of having to build up a team almost entirely of raw material.

In the early Spring, before the arrival of Coach Bowers, Captain Edwards, with his customary "pep" and ginger, sent out a call for candidates; and, as our pitching staff had been sadly depleted by the loss of all the dependable Varsity men, he urged the pitchers especially to come out for a trial. In response to his call, a great swarm of men, some fifty or sixty in number, reported to the Varsity field.

As the practice season advanced, the more unpromising material was by the process of elimination relegated to the class field, and Coach Bowers began to get a line on the prospective Varsity players. They seemed to line up about as follows: Pitchers, Aycock, Graves, and Craven; Catchers, Hart and Knowles; First Base, Leak; Second Base, Bailey; Shortstop, Edwards; Third Base, Williams, Left-field, Long; Centerfield, Thompson or H. Bailey; Rightfield, Johnson. This represented a much stronger line-up than it was thought possible to obtain from the material at hand.

ONE HUNDRED NINETY

BASEBALL

In the first game of the season, the team met defeat at the hands of the Atlantic Coast Line team in Wilmington. The team next went up against the strong Princeton nine, in Greensboro, and was again defeated through combinations of hard luck. Passing over that part of the season before the Virginia games—for the average Carolina student gauges the success of the season not so much by the number of games the team wins or loses as by the outcome of the Virginia games—we will find that Carolina broke

At Greensboro, we defeated Virginia in a beautifully contested game by the score of 5 to 4. However, at Charlottesville, Virginia evened things up by beating us 12 to 9. Another game of importance which might be mentioned was the one played in Raleigh with our sister institution, A. & M. College. In this, the first baseball game between the two institutions in seven years, we were forced to accept the smaller end of the score.

The A. & M. Meet

A. & M. had a good team we heard: they had hopes, too, we also heard. "Nat" kept quiet, though, until the fourth of April, when his boys walked off with the meet 80 to 36, taking nine first places. Spence took first in the mile and the half-mile. Little Pat took second in the quarter. Sears took first in the 100, and Smith took first in the 220. Big Pat took first in the two-mile. Strong and Blalock won the vault easily. Struthers took the low hurdles, and Woollcott the high hurdles and the high jump. A. & M. got first in the broad jump, hammer, shot, and quarter, came next, on April 26, again in Raleigh. There was much interest in the meet this year, because of the fact that Carolina had twice won the cup offered by the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce, and would come into permanent possession of it if she should win again. A. & M., Wake Forest, and Trinity were determined to give us a fight for the prize. We were determined to gain our third straight victory and our cup. Again "Nat" termined to gain our third straight victory and our cup. Again Nat had been on the job. Fifty-three and one-half of the 142 points came our way. Thirty-six went to A. & M., twenty-eight and one-half to Wake Forest, and twenty-four to Trinity. Even in such a big meet, seven first places were won by Carolina. "Baby" Sears ran away with the 100 and 220. Little Pat came back and won the guarter from the man who had beaten him in the A. & M. meet. Whiting took the half, and Spence the mile. Cobb got second on the two-mile; Axley took second in the shot. Strong broke the State record by vaulting eleven feet flat. Woollcott won in the high jump and high hurdles. To give a Carolina finish to a Carolina victory, the White and Blue walked off with the relay, thereby winning another cup offered for this event. The third meet has been won; the State cup is ours.

The S. A. I. A. A. Meet

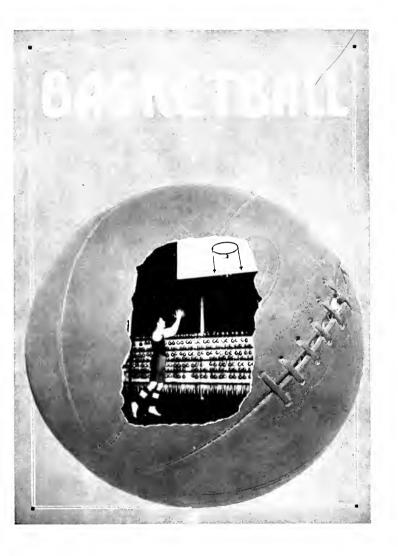

The showing made at Baltimore was not as good as was expected. In 1912, Carolina took second; in 1913, with a better team, she could not place so well. But we can't hope for victory all the time. Off days come often in practice; they will surely come sometimes in the meet too.

But just the same, our season as a whole was a great success. The old men came up to their standards; some broke them. The new men were developed into first-class athletes; they are now ready to take their places for 1914.

BASKET-BALL

BASKET-BALL

HE season 1913-'14 in basket-ball opened up with the brightest prospects for Carolina since the introduction of the sport into the University. Chambers. Long, and Homewood were the only relics of last year's squad to report at the closing of the football season. Rapson, the only o-Ritch-inal offspring of the game as demonstrated in the early ages, regretfully gave up this one-of-twenty of his pastimes. and decided to devote for once in his life his whole time to one thing; that one thing happened not to be basket-ball. New men were not lacking, however, and the new squad proved strong. Among the most promising candidates were John-CAROLINA AFTER THE son, a substitute, from Lynchburg; Tennent, a member of the Ashe-STATE CHAMPIONSHIP ville team for four years; Edwards, Guilford's big center of last Tandy Scores 19 Points Out of 28 Against Wake Forest year; Tandy, a new man from Illinois, and one mentioned for South Atlantic football center for the season: Keesler, Davis, Pou, Goodson, Fleming, and many others. The results of the first several games were unusually gratifying, and

Without a Center, the Team Was Helpless

The returns from the mid-term examinations almost ruined any prospects for State or South Atlantic honors. On account of the eight-hour law, we lost both of our centers, Edwards and Tandy.

As a result, in the midst of our season we were forced to transfer Johnson from his guard position to center, and start over again. Right at this point, before we had practiced a single night with our new line-up, we met Virginia, with the strongest team she had ever put out, and a team that was then high on the rungs toward championship honors. ginia swamped us on the floor at Raleigh. This defeat was a source of stimulus, and with a team, crippled, yet stronger than usual, the rest of the season was finished up in a fairly creditable manner.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

FEW facts will tell the central things in the Young Men's Christian Association. The Bible Study work was organized on the group basis, with a total enrollment of three hundred and twelve, and a persisting average weekly attendance of one hundred and forty. This work was made responsible by a system of group secretarial reports to the chairman, and was sustained through the year by three normal classes for the twenty-two student leaders, who held their groups to the end. The motive of the Bible Study work was to emancipate the minds of the young men from the tyrauny of a mechanical conception of the Bible and religion, and to put them in more individual touch with the lived ideals and the spiritual personality of Christ as a savior of men to their higher natures.

The neighborhood work conducted by the students in the rural communities reached out in all directions three: and four-mile walks. A training class for the student leaders met weekly. This work was very pleasant, among a kind and hospitable people. Box parties, Christmas trees, and picnics were held during the year. Members of the University faculty made talks in the churches and schoolhouses. The neighborhood work was also concerned with starting a corn-growing contest among the boys of the country-side.

In the negro work, three Sunday Schools were manned in part by student teachers, and a night school for working boys was conducted five nights in the week. A six-weeks' course in the study of "Negro Elfe in the South" was given by members of the faculty. A colored Y. M. C. A. was started in the Winter. A social investigation of housing and sanitation was conducted by the students, and reports made to the Southern office.

In the relivious meetings, came three important series of addresses: The first series on "The College Man and Religion"; the second on "North Carolina Problems"; and the third on "Life Work Decisions." The book exchange did a good business, handling over twelve hundred books, and $530.00 in cash. The exchange continued through the nine months. The self-help department was on the lookout every week for permanent positions and odd jobs.

By February the first two hundred and five dollars had been contributed to the work of Eugene E. Rarnett, in China, with a prospective sum to follow. The reach of Barnett's life is inestimable in raising the faith of the men of this college, as they give their money to his work at one of the decisive center for the Christian advance of the Christian advance secured Dr. L. R. Wilson to be the advisory treasurer. Under his direction, the financial system has been further organized on a business-like basis. The Association has come to realize that it is a business as well as a religions organization, and that there is a converse to the proposition that business needs religion.

Two other notable things in the year were the evangelistic campaien and the Kansas City Convention. Mr. E. C. Mercer and Charles D. Hurrey, without the surface stirring of emotions, brought men face to face with the facts of sin and religion and life in a way that will remain. The five students who represented the University at the Student Volunteer Convention at Kansas City came back with a new sense of the spiritual values, with the inspiration of a great cause, and with a vision of the world's needs that carried over into the life of every day.

This set of questions was put to the Freshman Class, and some of the answers follow.

- 1. Who pays Trenchard's salary? Alumnae.
- 2. Who elects the Business Manager of the Glee Club? English Department.
- Is basket-ball a major or minor sport? Generally considered a minor, but players receive monograms.
- 4. What organization finances the Star Course? Henry Meeks. Litterature Society.
- How much work must a man pass to indulge in Varsity athletics? Four hours.

 Twelve hours.
- 6. What is our Scholarship rule in our athletic requirements? Nothing but tuition.

 If you make the team, you get your tuition free. No man who has a scholarship may indulge in athletics.
- 7. How many fraternities in college? Twenty-three.
- 8. Name as many as you can. Golden Fleece. German Club. Fi Kappu Theta.
 Sigma Kai. Kappa Alph. Law K. A. Kappa Alpha. Zeta Psi. Sigma
 Nuc. Amathopham. Gogn Head.
- 9. How are Y. M. C. A. officers nominated? By Faculty.
- What is the Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, and who selects it? The Y. M. C. A. Cabinet is a form of bookcase which contains books. The Secretary usually selects it.
- 14. What is the Pan-Hellenic Council? To give characteristic names to the Freshmen. It is an organization in the Greek Department.
- 15. What officers compose the Athletic Council? Coach Trenchard, E. B. Runkin.

BILLY PITT-Doc, my feet still hurt.

DOCTOR-Didn't that Allen's footease help them any?

PITT-Not a bit, and I took a large dose, too.

'17-Mr. Parker, does it cost you much to run your car?

HOSKIE-Well, I guess it does. I have worn out eight pairs of shoes since I bought the "Titanic."

"How about 'Too Much Johnson' for a good play?" said the manager. "For God's sake, no," cried Booker. "We had that last year."

Fred McCall was trying to tell an old familiar joke. McIver (hopelessly)—"Noah, come claim thy own."

Dr. Wilson (on Registration Day)—Mr. Burnett, have you taken Physics? "Scipio"—Er-er-yes, sir. Ma gave me a dose of salts the day before I left home.

Whiting was trying to expound H. H. Wisen. "Now," he says, "My attitude during the Spring exams, while working for Φ B K, might be described as one of Faith."

P. WOOLLCOTT-Well, Seymour; I don't want to be personal, but it seems to me that your case demanded a good measure of Charity also.

AND HE FELL ON HIS NECK AND WEPT

RATTY—"Froggie" Wilson says that a frog will lay one hundred eggs a week.

RATTY-You fool, the frog would die.

FRESH-Then sell the hops to Anhauser Busch.

FIRST GEOLOGY STUDENT—Does Professor Cobb know anything about the geological strata around Chicago?

Graduate in Geology—No; but he can tell you all about them, just the same,
